Did he really put his cape in the mud for the Queen to walk upon as legend goes? The son of a well-to-do family, he studied at Oxford before serving as a teenager in the Huguenot Army in France in 1569 and again in the Queen's army in Ireland in 1580. When he was 17 years old, he left his college to fight for the Protestants Huguenots in France. For these reasons, he was made a knight in 1585, given an Irish estate, and became captain of the Queen's of Guards.
