The Coming of Wanda CHAPTER XXI.

An Algonquin Maiden A Romance of the Early Days of Upper Canada

It had rained the night before, and a warm pallor in the eastern sky was the only indication that the sun was trying to pierce the gray dome of nearly opaque watery fog, lying low upon that part of the world now known as the city of Toronto, then the town of Little York.

At Stamford Cottage CHAPTER XX. While Rose is in love with the ambitious young politician Allan Dunlop whom her father cannot stand for his radical and progresive views, Edward cannot decide whom to love: Blond and cultivated Hélène, the European fragile flower? In its clear waters the Indians plunged or paddled, or lay in attitudes picturesquely inert upon its shores. Mercer Adam and Ethelwyn Wetherald have created a microcosm full of clashing stereotypes.
