Plants That Are Considered Unlucky

Positioning indoor plants that bring good luck such as Lucky Bamboo in the South East zone attracts money and wealth. The succulent leaves are jade green, and some cultivars may have red or yellow edges. The bad luck and good luck associated with plants are wide developed and believers often consider the luck associated with different plants when choosing plants to grow or buy.

Lucky Plants for Home

Purchasing flowers can be expensive especially if you want fresh ones. The West Indian tree called MAMEY Mammea americana must be mentioned here, not that the tree is itself unlucky, but in Jamaica it was reckoned unlucky even fatal to plant the seed Folk-lore. Lucky plants like citrus trees are claimed to bring good luck and prosperity to the home.

Unlucky Plants

Granted, the first daffodil is a lucky one. Having a number of houseplants is good to help purify the air in your home and improve humidity. Now this is one of those practical based superstitions.
