The Catholic Advocate was a weekly newspaper published independently by the Hibernian Newspaper Company, in Fortitude Valley. Anna Leander is Professor of International Relations at the Graduate Institute in Geneva. So I think the emergence of a public sphere-and there's some discussion about when that emerged-obviously prior to that the discovery and invention of the printing press, which was very important.

Queensland History: Douglas bibliography

At Moreton Bay, he found the Brisbane River whose existence Cook had predicted, and proceeded to explore the lower part of it. The shaft method sunk a vertical shaft straight down to the seam; this involved time consuming prospecting and constructing a timber-lined shaft up to forty metres deep, the coal, however, was of a much higher quality. As new post offices were opened, numerals were allocated and these remained in use until 1915, when they were withdrawn by federal directive.
