Local Democracy, Economic Development and Construction Act 2009

The police recorded 882 bicycle thefts 833 in the year before. More information on media training and professionalism is provided in chapter. Nevertheless, in 2012 the percentage of women in parliament even in established democracies is still well below parity India 11%, United States 17%, Denmark 39%.

The main British parties have generally not stood in seats in Northern Ireland. But this would not suit most countries. Many advanced democracies - the Netherlands, Denmark, and Norway, for example - take little or no notice of previous election results when they allocate broadcasting time.

In many countries, free elections are themselves a new phenomenon. Invariably the victims of these laws were black.

The SHS is a continuous survey, conducted annually since 1999. There are two well-documented examples from the Philippines. The government under President Issaias Afewerki of Eritrea, the country with the lowest index rating, continued to stifle any media freedom whatsoever through routine arrests and deaths of journalists.

In Barbados, for example, it is the Electoral and Boundaries Commission, the body with overall responsibility for the election, which is also responsible for regulating media coverage. There is a growing weight of decisions by national tribunals on the right of opposition parties to access to the government media.
