Chesterton on War and Peace (2007 edition)

By 1918, battles were fought with air support, breaking down defenses Allied forces, meanwhile, launched a renewed assault on German lines in the Flanders region of Belgium, known as the Third Battle of Ypres. So, he is going to do it-wait and see! There is no way of knowing what was possible. He marched on the city center with the intention of taking it over and then marching on the German capital, , but he had failed to win the support of the army, the police, or business and political elites, and the putsch was dispelled in a hail of gunfire.

Wars Are Not Unavoidable

Wilson presented the war option as if it were the only honorable alternative.

National Socialism

All German overseas colonies became League of Nation Mandates, and the city of Danzig, with its large ethnically German population, became a Free City. Ten days later, Secretary of State William Jennings Bryan appealed to both sides to honor international law and allow neutral commercial vessels to conduct non-contraband trade.

Rebuilding the world after the second world war

The total number of military and civilian casualties in the Great War is estimated at 40 million, about half being fatalities.

Inkling Home

It had been circulating for more than a decade, gaining support among both conservatives and liberals in the United States and Great Britain. Studies have found the majority of human societies to have no warfare or a very mild form of it. Once engaged in war, Wilson abandoned all pretense of seeking a peace agreement short of victory.

The Crisis: We Should Not Again Sacrifice Our Sons

Likewise, historians and biographers have no justification for saying that he was committed, for instance, to peace — which he most definitely thought he was — without exploring what Wilson implicitly meant by that. Soul-Force and Tapasya—Mahatma Gandhi, 1917 G.

A short history of disarmament and arms control

The Ancient Greeks also managed to agree that, in the event of war, cities should not be cut off from their water supplies or completely destroyed.
