Troubadours in the Middle Ages

Though they are a minority, within the Church there are voices at this time beginning to speak up for individual choice in marriage.

British Library EThOS: Aspects of the poetic treatment of love and female figures in the works of the troubadour Marcabru

According to his legendary vida, he was the lover of Seremonda, or Soremonda, wife of Raimon of Castel Rossillon.

Troubadours, the (c.1100

The flesh in De amore is not marginalized as it is in the later spiritualized poetry of the Dantean and Petrarchan traditions.

Troubadour

I made father and son turn against each other; Achitophel did not do more with Absalom and David, through his malevolent provocations. What joy it will be to seek that day, For love of God, that inn afar, And, if she wishes, rest, I say, Near her, though I come from afar, For words fall in a pleasant shower When distant lover has the power, With gentle heart, joy to realise.
