Counselor and client, then, attempt to reach a mutual agreement as to the purpose and direction of their relationship.

The Differences Between IDEA and Section 504

These children may not be invited to play dates and birthday parties, as other parents are uncertain about what would be necessary to facilitate the child's participation.

The Differences Between IDEA and Section 504

The more normally the child is treated, the better adjusted he and his family will be. Tests are used for classifications of pupils into sections.

Child Counseling: What Is Child Counseling & What Do Child Psychologists Treat?

Do you agree or disagree that, in essence, the counselor of parents of exceptional children is dealing with problems of human behavior and, therefore, is essentially working with the fundamentals of psychology? We start with a discussion of why transitions may be difficult and when frustrations are most likely to occur.
