Einhard 770-840 , Rabanus Maurus 776-856 , the ablest scholar of his time, and Walafid Strabo 809-849 are men of extensive and disinterested learning. Indeed, men neither dared nor were able to do without classical teaching. We know that the course of studies in the town and village schools per villas et viccos comprised at least the elements of Christian Doctrine, plainsong, the rudiments of grammar, and perhaps, where the influence of St.
