The book included comes with a pretty simple set of rules for creating star systems.

Star Traders

Basically this is a collection of stories by Poul Anderson about one of his iconic characters, Nicholas van Rijn, CEO of Solar Spice and Liquors.

Trader to the Stars (Future history of the Polesotechnic League, book 2) by Poul Anderson

For whatever reason the people around you want nothing to do with you so you left to find a place you might be accepted.

Trader to the Stars

The apologies here feel just a tad too disingenuous As much as I generally enjoy Poul Anderson, this particular set of stories is something of a miss for me. Using as a template the Hanseatic League of the European Middle Ages, the Polesotechnic League is a far future association of free enterprise who have over reached traditional governmental structures. You generate your 9 characteristics by rolling 2d10 and add a 25, or an option for point allocation is also given.

Trader to the Stars

Only Nicholas van Rijn is fleshed out — quite literally.
