24 March 2000, Mass for Youth at the Mount of Beatitudes

We come to you, most holy Virgin. I gladly take this opportunity to express my thanks once again to President Mubarak, to the Egyptian authorities and to everyone who helped to make this journey possible.

This is why His Holiness Pope Francis will go to Iraq

The pilgrim path of the Church through this new century and the new millennium is the path traced out for her by her inherent vocation to unity. War is not always inevitable.

Ecumenical meeting in the Greek

He met with Israel's President, Prime Minister and Chief Rabbis, visited the Western Wall, and laid a wreath at Yad Vashem. I have come to Yad Vashem to pay homage to the millions of Jewish people who, stripped of everything, especially of their human dignity, were murdered in the Holocaust. Thus Jesus' disciples do not feel oppressed by a multitude of prescriptions, but, spurred by the power of love, see God's Commandments as a law of freedom: the freedom to love through the internal action of the Spirit.

Naturally, it is impossible to overcome all the pains of the past overnight. May Saint John Baptist protect Islam and all the people of Jordan, and all who participated in this celebration, a memorable celebration.

This is why His Holiness Pope Francis will go to Iraq

Only 200 generations since the emergence on the stage of history of a man called Abraham, who left his home and native land and went to a place which is today my country.

24 March 2000, Mass for Youth at the Mount of Beatitudes

The Law and the Beatitudes together mark the path of the following of Christ and the royal road to spiritual maturity and freedom. It is always a defeat for humanity.

Catholic Commentary: Pope John Paul II: definite

In these words, the unique event that was to take place in Nazareth in the fullness of time is foretold, and it is this event that we are celebrating here with intense joy and happiness.

Visit to Wadi Al

He roots them, through the new life of grace, in the hearts of those who believe in him. Christ is the New Law, and in him salvation is offered to all nations. I gladly take this opportunity to express my thanks once again to President Mubarak, to the Egyptian authorities and to everyone who helped to make this journey possible.
