The Most Educated Group in the U.S.: Black Women

Black boys are three times more likely to be suspended than white kids.

Historically Black Colleges Are Becoming More White

A priority is bringing people of color and people with disabilities into the special education teaching ranks. African-American scholars were quick to point out the hypocrisy the scandal revealed. In comparison, white students represent 41 percent of pre-school enrollment but only 28 percent of those receiving more than one out-of-school suspension.

ED: Lists of Postsecondary Minority Institutions (Predominantly Black Institutions)

Tracing this undocumented pedagogical world was illuminating.

Facts about race and ethnicity in college admissions

Here I was, surrounded by people who had much to critique about affirmative action but very little to say about their own journey to the Ivy League — often precisely because of special preferences. The students for whom I write letters of recommendation for fellowships and graduate school, who will enter the profession decades after my first year of college, will be among a new group of firsts.

New Study Shows Black Women Are Among Most Educated In U.S.

Universities are increasingly aware of these issues. Yet as dramatic and entrenched as the gaps are, there are concrete steps that policymakers and researchers can take to offer more students the opportunities they deserve.
