ACOG Practice Bulletin No. 209: Obstetric Analgesia and Anesthesia

The purpose of this document is to review medical options for analgesia during labor and anesthesia for surgical procedures that are common at the time of delivery.

OBSTETRIC ANALGESIA AND ANESTHESIA

Individual subscriptions include print and online access.

Obstetric Analgesia and Anesthesia

General anesthesia is used in obstetric practice when regional anesthesia is contraindicated or when a maternal or fetal emergency requires a rapid, reliable anesthetic.

ACOG Practice Bulletin No. 209: Obstetric Analgesia and Anesthesia

Nonpharmacological approaches to labor pain management help women better cope with labor pain and maintain a sense of personal control over the labor process.

OBSTETRIC ANALGESIA AND ANESTHESIA

A woman who requests epidural analgesia during labor should not be deprived of this service based on the status of her health insurance. Nonpharmacologic options such as massage, immersion in water during the first stage of labor, acupuncture, relaxation, and hypnotherapy are not covered in this document, although they may be useful as adjuncts or alternatives in many cases.
