From Canterbury General Prologue (modern english and middle english)

He could make songs and words thereto indite, Joust, and dance too, as well as sketch and write. Wel koude he sitte on hors and faire ryde. Of wodecraft wel koude he al the usage.

The General Prologue

With him there was his son, a youthful squire, A lover and a lusty bachelor, With locks well curled, as if they'd laid in press. At Ayas was he and at Satalye When they were won; and on the Middle Sea At many a noble meeting chanced to be.

From Canterbury General Prologue (modern english and middle english)

A yeoman had he, nor more servants, no, At that time, for he chose to travel so; And he was clad in coat and hood of green.
