There is involvement in action research groups in the course of participation in action research that leads to the generation of a new social setting.

Reflective Teaching and Action Research

Advantages of Action Research Action research, as a paradigm, was mainly used for the improvement of the teaching profession, which is the main reason for pros and cons of action research examples being centered on education. In a school setting, the teacher plays the role of the researcher, and the students represent the study participants. Action research also aids in the building of a professional culture in the profession of the practitioners.
