houses in Nimidam were bulldozed and ousters were forced to move without adequate arrangement. Our work at the World Bank Group is based on strong country-led programs to improve living conditions — to drive growth, raise median incomes, create jobs, fully incorporate women and young people into economies, address environmental and climate challenges, and support a stronger, more stable economy for everyone.

What are the main criticisms of the World Bank and the IMF?

No prior disease has become a global threat so quickly as COVID-19. This is crucial for promoting widespread learning and improving the data-driven foundations of policymaking, and for forming a sense of shared solidarity during crises and ensuring that the difficult policy choices by officials are both trusted and trustworthy. Middle-income countries such as India and Nigeria will be significantly affected; middle-income countries may be home to 82% of the new poor.
