Biographical Sketches of the First Settlers to Georgia

The reasons for this action were explained to be: First, the Spanish colony of Florida on the south might persuade the slaves to leave their masters or join in an insurrection against the authority of the whites; Second, the time consumed by the master in keeping his slaves at work could be more profitably employed in doing the work himself; Third, in case of war the slaves, having no interests at stake, could not be relied on for the defence of the colony.

Zachariah Lamar and James Gorman were added later. John More McIntosh, a Scotch laird, the head of his clan, consented to lead the colony, and one hundred and thirty of them, with fifty women, took shipping from Inverness for Georgia. The force required for the various departments of this house is not less than one hundred persons.
