Virginia Agricultural And Mechanical College

There is reason to fear, however, that as yet comparatively few of our country schools give as complete instruction in writing, arithmetic, geography and grammar as the college student ought to have, and therefore it may be proper, at least temporarily, to include in our curriculum the higher grades of those studies.

Mechanics' institutes

He is wise without emphasis or assertion; he is strong, as nature is strong, who lifts the land into mountain slopes without effort and by the same rule as she floats a bubble in the air, and likes as well to do the one as the other. And we have a certain instinct, that where is great amount of life, though gross and peccant, it has its own checks and purifications, and will be found at last in harmony with moral laws. They are the men who carry on the industries of the country.

Analysis of Mark Twain's Novels

In the botanical department, models are now made of flowers, the cultivated plants, and grains, on a magnified scale, so that the lecturer can exhibit separately every part of a plant, or of a seed, so as to be distinctly visible to each member of a large class.

Kant and the Concept of Race: Late Eighteenth

It has come to be practically a sort of rule in literature, that a man having once shown himself capable of original writing, is entitled thenceforth to steal from the writings of others at discretion. The candidate may suggest no more than half of the potential referee names to the unit administrator.

Kant and the Concept of Race: Late Eighteenth

Cheese and butter making, tree and fruit growing, gardening, plant houses, and many other things are worthy of attention; and they will all be provided for in the course of time, if the college is so managed as to commend itself to the enlightened common sense of the people. The six elementary studies taught in these schools are an essential introduction to the studies of the higher school, and should be thoroughly mastered. These results can be spoken of with confidence, inasmuch as they were thoroughly tested at the different World's Fairs which have been held, and particularly at the Paris Exposition of 1867.

Mechanics' institutes

With regard to the latter, it being impossible to illustrate all trades at one institution, the best idea seems to be to exhibit the working in wood and iron, as the leading occupations.
