As I approached retirement in London, I looked towards the west coast of the US where I had spent a year as a fellow at the Getty Research Institute for a new career.

Designing the French Interior: The Modern Home and Mass Media: Anca I. Lasc: Bloomsbury Academic

In the first part I discuss the bust and statue as genres, looking at the emergence of the portrait bust and statue, the way in which they functioned as representations, their conventions, their settings and viewing conditions and the processes of commissioning, making, and replication.

Rooms of their own

Even in an era of backlash, the studios of Paris still offered an unparalleled resource for aspiring women artists from across the world. Paul Getty Museum and also many impressive pieces from private collections and churches.

Furnishing the Eighteenth Century: What Furniture Can Tell Us about the European and American Past

Though still engaged with late Gothic German sculpture, my focus was increasingly on eighteenth-century sculpture, especially but far from exclusively British.

Furniture and Domesticity

American-born Anna Klumpke, a one-time student at the Académie Julian, preserved the studio of her companion, Rosa Bonheur, in the Fontainebleau forest.

What a Portrait of a British Family Reveals about 18th

Studies of the eighteenth-century interior have proliferated in recent years.

Eighteenth

This work offers an account of the forms and functions of interior decoration in Parisian domestic architecture during the first half of the 18th century - the period generally known as the rococo.
