Don't you have anything better to do? Thus, Śrī Rāma did the service of nation following the morals of Rājadharmā for being a designated forthcoming king and a Kṣatriya during his exile. Vālī has ravished the spouse of his younger brother called Rūmā, and it is Kṣatriya dharma to punish all those who violate moral rules and commit sins.

Is this a practical and rational act? This is one of the most powerful mantras, and the reason it is so often recited at the time of death is because of the ultimate peace it bestows upon the atman. You are wasting your time and are hurting each other, just because you won't let the other one pass.

Short Kathas: September 2016

Vālī called this action of Rāma as immoral deed which is not supported by dharma Ram. Without fail he kept his Dhanuṣa, and tarakasa for the protection of state and its people, living in the city or forest.
