Love's Labor's Lost Translation

Shakespeare's satiric sense which he was to use throughout the rest of his life is first evidenced here. But the radical editing of the play -- to make room for all that flat footwork -- renders the purpose of a number of the characters inexplicable.

Princess of France Act 5, Scene 2 Our wooing doth not end like an old play. Branagh's rather brilliant directorial vision led him to transform this very verbal, extremely obscure play into a grand musical, full of classics by the likes of Irving Berlin, Cole Porter, and George and Ira Gershwin. But, most esteemed greatness, will you hear the dialogue that the two learned men have compiled in praise of the owl and the cuckoo? Berowne This fellow pecks up wit as pigeons pease, And utters it again when God doth please.

SCENE II. The same.

Their form confounded makes most form in mirth, When great things laboring perish in their birth.

About Love's Labour's Lost

A conqueror, and afraid to speak! It has never been among Shakespeare's most popular plays, probably because its pedantic humour and linguistic density are extremely demanding of contemporary theatregoers. Light, seeking light, doth light of light beguile; So ere you find where light in darkness lies Your light grows dark by losing of your eyes. This gallant pins the wenches on his sleeve; Had he been Adam, he had tempted Eve.
