Today, it is the rest of Europe that has very low fertility rates, and countries like Germany or Spain avoid population decline only through immigration. It provides data about the sex and age distribution of the population in an accessible graphical format. C'est ce à quoi ont répondu les premiers résultats provisoires, publiées au première semestre, du mené en 2014 par le Haut-commissariat au plan HCP.

Therefore, the outlook towards immigrants in France is shifting as unemployment continues to dominate the political agenda, along with political incentives to strengthen French national identity. Rates of birth, death, natural increase and total variation are obtained in this way. The immigration rate is currently lower than in other European countries such as United Kingdom and Spain; however, some say it is unlikely that the policies in themselves account for such a change.
