Kyoto Travel Guide

Address: 657 Higashiyama Ward, Kyoto, Kyoto Prefecture 605-0941 The original Kyoto Imperial Palace Kyoto-gosho , built in AD 794 and replaced several times after being destroyed by fire, remains one of the city's most visited historic sites.

Kyoto

These should include the many examples of its centuries-old architecture, much of it influenced by Buddhism, which can still be seen in the many splendid temples located in the quieter, less visited corners of the old city. Surrounding the temple are beautiful, manicured gardens, some of which are designed to show the harmony between heaven and Earth. Cooking class has been one of the most popular activities among foodie travellers from all over the world.

You should also spend some time at the Otowa Waterfall, which is divided into three streams representing love, success, and longevity. Following Chinese precedent, care was taken when the site was selected to protect the northern corners, from which, it was believed, evil spirits could gain access. Originally, the structure was supposed to be a kind of villa for retirees, but after the death of the owner it changed hands and became temple.

Highlights of a visit include seeing numerous examples of historic art and applied arts, along with regular exhibitions be prepared for plenty of walking.

Kyoto

This hotel features an art gallery and unique rooms that are tastefully compact but highly functional, including some with terraces. They were created by the priest and the locals, so the small faces are unique and incredibly expressive. The other, newer line, completed in 1997, runs from the JR Nijō station in the west across the city to the east and then to , southeast of the city.
