Saemaul Undong

In response, Park eventually abdicated from his military position to be eligible to run as a civilian in the upcoming presidential election, despite he and the other military leaders pledging not to run for office. In 1948, the prevalent debate in South Korean education was whether to maintain an elitist multitrack path based on the prewar Japanese colonial model, or adopt an open American system that avoided early tracking and did not terminalize primary or secondary education. Chang Donghee expressed, since his team and he had been to Sri Lanka on several occasions, that Sri Lanka has increasing potential to develop and advance by using a concept or model similar to Saemaul Undong.
