First, the Court obliges national courts to take non-binding instruments into account to comply with their obligation to interpret national law in conformity with EU law or where those instruments are designed to supplement binding EU law provisions.

Development Cooperation in a Fractured Global Order

Professor Saïd Aghrib teaches Law at Université Cadi Ayyad, Marrakech, Morocco, aghrib@yahoo. While as many as 80—90 per cent of environmental laws adopted by the Council of Ministers in the late 1970s were new, the proportion was down to 40—50 per cent by the early 1990s, even falling as low as 20 per cent in 1995 and 1997. As regards greater flexibility in achieving policy objectives in its external trade relations, it certainly appears as a key rationale of the acts examined above.
