William the Conqueror Family Group

. In the days before the Revolution, he had a part interest in a sloop, The Omega, which carried cargoes of corn to the West Indies. It is not known where he served his apprenticeship as a gold and silversmith; possibly, he was sent to London, although he may have worked under a Philadelphia silversmith.

The Richardson Family Tree

Gary Paul Richardson descends from and is a close match to Marshall likely confirming the long held belief that Zimri was a descendent of Drury. I am related to the Richardson family by virtue of the marriage of my maternal great-grandfather William Newton Jenkins to Emmerine Morrison, who was the daughter of Ada Ann Richardson Morrison, who was the daughter of Isaac E.
