Academica Press

It may be that the Trant MacCarthy claim to chiefship is the most plausible one, but that is far from concluding that it is definitely proven. Online documentation relating to this prize provides us with some more information about the Council, its aims and members: About the Standing Council of Irish Chiefs and Chieftains Buanchomhairle Thaoisigh Éireann The Council was formed to promote the following objects: a To consider matters affecting the Irish Chiefs, Chieftains and the Clans they represent; b To submit its views and interests to Government, to Departments of State, to local authorities, to Press and Public and to Associations connected with Clan and Family in Ireland and overseas; c To educate the general public in matters connected with the rights, functions and historical position of Irish Chiefs and Chieftains; d To take such steps as may seem expedient to protect the titles, armorial bearings and other appurtenances of Chiefs and Chieftains from exploitation or misuse in trade or otherwise; e To promote and preserve the Gaelic heritage of Ireland; f Any other objects related to the above objects.
