Living in the truth has special significance in social relationships. For this reason the Church's social doctrine is not a privilege for her, nor a digression, a convenience or interference: it is her right to proclaim the Gospel in the context of society, to make the liberating word of the Gospel resound in the complex worlds of production, labour, business, finance, trade, politics, law, culture, social communications, where men and women live. The Church's social doctrine is an integral part of her evangelizing ministry.

The social teaching of the Bishops offers valid contributions and impetus to the Magisterium of the Roman Pontiff. The third challenge is globalization, the significance of which is much wider and more profound than simple economic globalization, since history has witnessed the opening of a new era that concerns humanity's destiny.

In this regard, all those attitudes that encourage in citizens an inadequate or incorrect practice of participation or that cause widespread disaffection with everything connected with the sphere of social and political life are a source of concern and deserve careful consideration. They also remind us that reason and free will are linked with all the bodily and sense faculties.
