Our expert social workers can carry out both preliminary reports, which are by definition, a brief report or a full expert analysis and report, both of which are subject to a robust quality assurance process and ensuring the highest standard of report. The expert has to judge the standards of care relating to the time of the allegations and provides full reference of the legislation, guidance and practice at the time. Our timescales are six weeks for a preliminary report, and 8-10 weeks for an expert report, although these are negotiable with the Instructing Solicitor and the expert.
