. These data may well suggest an annual figure of 80,000—100,000 pieces of cloth exported from Oxyrhynchus, or more likely the Oxyrhynchite nome, during a period when the activity at the market in the Serapeum of Oxyrhynchus was apparently close to its slowest point van Minnen 1986: 92; see especially Bagnall 1995: 80—1, who raises important questions about this papyrus.
