Countryside Commission - About us :: Countryside Properties plc

Classification name	The Rural/Urban Local Authority Classification (England)
Year and publisher	2005, Department for Agriculture and Rural Affairs (Defra), updated in 2009 and 2011
Inputs and data	Population and numbers of commercial properties for urban areas; how local authority populations fit into these urban areas
Geographic coverage	England only covers local authorities, counties, and many public sector geographies, such as primary care organisations
Headline results, 2009	(For pre-2009 local authorities) 64 per cent of people live in urban local authority areas, 36 per cent in rural local authority areas
Other elements/ notable uses	Please note that two slightly different methodologies have been used to produce the classifications based on pre-April 2009 boundaries and post-April 2009 boundaries. While either can be used, a dataset for the pre-April 2009 boundaries that uses the newer methodology will be made available later in 2011. This should give a useful balance between the latest method and the most detailed geography, but it was not possible to use it in this article
