Hag's Nook : Carr, John Dickson, 1906

Possible ex library copy, will have the markings and stickers associated from the library. The Starberth family governed the now-abandoned Chatterham prison for many years, and each male heir must spend the night of his twenty-fifth birthday there, alone, overlooking the hanging site of Hag's Nook.

Hag's Nook

This fiendish caveat has been at the heart of the Starberth madness. Need more info or a scan, just let us know. Carr does macabre very very well, but genuine terror is less of a feature.

JOHN DICKSON CARR DR. FELL MYSTERY VERY GOOD 30€ COMBINED SHIPPING

I'm not completely convinced that Carr played fair with us readers, as the vital clue Dr Fell based his deductions on was based on his Fell's knowledge of how one character would behave, and although the behaviour was described to us, we don't have the insight Fell has into what was wrong with this behaviour.

in so many words...: Friday's Forgotten Books: Hag's Nook (1933) by John Dickson Carr

The current heir, Martin Starberth, is now 25 and it is time for him to undertake the family ritual. I liked this one — thanks for the review.

Hag's Nook by John Dickson Carr

The Starberth family have another historical haunting to their family line.

I think there should be one Carr review per month on all the blogs. The clues are fair but obscure.
