What Is Perception?

Without any context, you must use bottom-up processing. One has to have some bare experience to provide the raw materials for our conceptually structured experience or thought. Here it is useful to distinguish between two theses about experiences.

Visual Skills: The 3 R's that Detect Visual Perception Deficiencies

According to Searle, this proposal also reflects the phenomenology of particularity. Perception is related to insight and understanding. They defend both theses on the grounds that experiences can provide justification for beliefs only if these theses are true.

Perception

The central idea behind this view is that to represent a situation—whether in language, in thought, or in experience—is to distinguish between two ways the world might be: first, ways the world might be if the situation does obtain, where these include the actual world; second, ways the world might be if the situation does not obtain. Putative examples of perceiving absences include hearing pauses, sensing the emptiness of your stomach, seeing the total darkness of a cave, or feeling the holes in old-fashioned computer paper by running your finger down the sides of the page these examples are from Sorensen 2004; see also Sartre 1958 and Farennikova 2013 and 2015.

Readings 10: Perception

If experiences have at most only one kind of content, then there will be a substantive debate about whether experience contents are Russellian, unstructured, Fregean, or versions of these modified to take account of indexicality.

Vision and Mind: Selected Readings in the Philosophy of Perception by Alva Noë

He carefully covered her swollen red knuckles.

2.1 Perception Process

Affordances are possibilities of action of a creature Gibson 1977. In contrast, people from certain non-Western cultures with an uncarpentered view, such as the Zulu of South Africa, whose villages are made up of round huts arranged in circles, are less susceptible to this illusion Segall et al.

Epistemology of Perception, The

Choosing to use perceptions in creating action scene.

Epistemology of Perception, The

In contrast, when one speaks of the contents of a newspaper, one is talking about what information the newspaper stories convey. Such creatures would seem to be impossible if experiences were constitutively linked to beliefs, as the views discussed here hold.
