Other possible replacements for the leaflets are cheap disposable cellular phones that could be used to communicate directly with the finders or the greater dissemination of cheap portable battery, sun or crank-powered radios that would allow a target audience to listen to a propaganda message. A basic difference between falling leaflets is the type of motion they assume during descent. There is a ton of useful FREE information there! A digital version may someday be the only record of an original object that deteriorates or is destroyed.
