Requirements

When Harvard University started its dental school in 1867, their degrees were called Dentariae Medicinae Doctorate Doctor of Medicine in Dentistry because Harvard uses Latin names for their degrees. However, some choose to specialize in a particular area of dentistry after earning their degree.

DDS vs DMD: What Is The Difference?

J-Gate also plans to support online subscription to journals, electronic document delivery, archiving and other related services. Accreditation: Knowing if a school is accredited or not is very important.

Requirements

Official test scores must be sent by the testing agency directly to the University of Toronto. For applicants who have written the DAT exam more than once we will use the highest set of DAT scores. Advanced Placement AP and International Baccalaureate IB course work can be credited towards predoctoral requirements as long as the credit appears on your official college transcript.

Academics

All you need to do is to fill out all the forms once, no matter how many schools you apply to. Summa Cum Laude: Overall average of 93 with no grade less than 80. TOEFL scores are not required for admission to the four-year predoctoral program.

The Point

You need high scores and involvement in research work all the time. Note: results from the Special Home Edition of the Internet-based Test launched in select countries in March 2020 will be considered. Express this in your application.
