World Economic Situation And Prospects: September 2020 Briefing, No. 141

After Doha, it is clear that the TRIPS Agreement should not prevent developing countries from addressing public health needs. These economies have been facing trade restrictions from before the outbreak, such as tariff increases, import bans, stricter customs procedures, among other measures.

Global Economic Prospects and the Developing Countries 2001

Currently, no specific commitments have been agreed by the G20 to ease the restrictions.

Trade Prospects for Developing Countries after the Rise in Oil

In the current context, it is unclear how GVCs will or will not change when the risks posed by the virus recede.

However, the pandemic has ceased the increasing trends.

PROSPECTS FOR PROGRESS: THE TRIPS AGREEMENT AND DEVELOPING COUNTRIES AFTER THE DOHA CONFERENCE

This year's report focuses on international trade and discusses policies that are required if developing countries are to benefit from global integration. Though the post-COVID-19 era has yet to come, world trade has started its recovery since the third quarter of 2020.
