The relevant amounts and the time of delivery, which are not under control of and cannot be predicted by Shunga. As autumn mountains tinged with scarlet were you, maiden, A pliable bamboo, Supply bending, lady, Of what were you thinking? The poem reads: The wild hill pheasants drag their feet and drag their tails, Splendid though they be, Through this long, long weary night, Like me, laying here alone.

The ancient penal law did not have the death penalty by drowning that Umehara supposed existed. But there is a grievous doom none may escape; across the moorland, where a single candle glows from afar, your bier is borne, amid white funeral banners. He also composed a poem related to having faith in the power of language: 'It has been said that this country, , is a country protected by the spirits of language, so please relax and keep safe on your journey'.

Because no poem survives which was definitely composed in the late period when the capital was placed at the Imperial capital of Japan for 16 years between 694 and 710 or after the transfer of the capital to Heijokyo the ancient capital of Japan in present-day Nara, he is considered to have passed away before the relocation of the capital to Heijokyo. In regard to the above, many theories, such as that of Mokichi SAITO, used to purport that Hitomaro had many wives and mistresses, but recent theories generally assert that he composed these poems as love stories, not on the basis of his own real-life experiences.
