As a child, the author and siblings waved countless times to rear end crews from the baggage cart at the Fort Dodge depot as the manifest or local passed en route to their terminals.

HO Scale Freight Cars

By this time wooden cars were relegated to branch line and local work and the steel cars held the high iron and the priority trains. The paint was the same as that of the freight cars, whatever the builder or the railroad had on hand. Then, new construction was carried out west of Dodge City in August of 1901.
