Ueshiro Shorin Ryu USA

In His critical essay Shōsetsu shinzui 1885—86; The Essence of the Novel greatly influenced the writing of subsequent fiction not only because of its emphasis on realism as opposed to didacticism but because Shōyō, a member of the samurai class, expressed the conviction that novels, hitherto despised by the...

Ueshiro Shorin Ryu USA

While Okinawa began rebuilding from the war, Master Ueshiro enrolled in the newly-formed dojo of Grand Master Shoshin Nagamine, founder of Matsubayashi Shorin-Ryu. He next appears alongside his men accosting.

Craig Hojo

Trained only to fight, these rōnin were without an occupation or means of support.

Ueshiro Shorin Ryu USA

By age 27 he was promoted to the rank of San—dan Sensei and eventually became Chief Instructor at the main Shorin-Ryu dojo in Naha. A famous military teacher in the Japanese capital of Edo now Tokyo, Yui gained a large following among the local masterless warriors. Despite such emotional and physical trauma, Master Ueshiro went on to become world renowned for mentoring others as much as his kumite skill and dexterity with the bo.

Craig Hojo

As they leave, Hojo observes that while the situation could have easily gotten messy, the students were more than what they appear. Hojo later left the command building to take up positions on the mountain, both to block Korosensei off and kill any intruders that infiltrated the base perimeter of Earth's Shield.
