An Introduction to the Glossa Ordinaria as Medieval Hypertext by David A. Salomon, Hardcover

The marginal glosses were usually selected comments that the compiler of the gloss chose from the commentaries and writings of the Early Church Fathers. Some of the group have features to support a provenance in the kingdom of Naples, Gaeta being 80 km north of the city. Gradually this mass of glosses took on in the a permanent form, a condition to its usefulness in teaching; and became a kind of secondary canonical text, less authoritative, of course, than the original, but supplying material for oral commentary.
