As this course necessarily spans semesters, students who enroll in the Fall course will be expected to enroll in the Spring course in order to present their projects at the AARI in February. When Thomas Jefferson elevated one pursuit to stand with life and liberty as inalienable rights, he eschewed others.

English (ENGL) | Penn State

We will then explore the proposed causes and effects of these individual differences drawing from research using approaches from psychodynamics to behavioral genetics. A critique of the land concentration model, prominent in Raised from the Ground, a novel by the Portuguese Nobel Prize José Saramago, in turn, will find a vivid visual deployment in Brazilian Sebastião Salgado's photography. Building on this, and introducing elements from group theory and fibre bundles we will introduce classical solitons as localised, finite energy solutions to the classical field equations in various dimensions kinks in 2d, vortices in 3d, monopoles in 4d, instantons in Euclidean 4d and discuss their properties, including the existence of zero-modes, associated collective coordinates and moduli spaces.

In this case, the locality that serves as the focus of study is Cape Cod, arguably the most written-about locale in the United States. There will also be specific discussion of the impact of mandatory rules or law as an issue of methodology and practice. This module uses elements of lawmaking and regulatory theory to illuminate how e-commerce regulation operates in practice.

Postmodernism and Feminism

Perhaps the most profound change in my thinking is how the new ease of information access has allowed me to synthesize broad new ideas drawing from fields of scholarship outside my own. The course includes discussion of the big bang and black holes. This module examines some core ideas in the history of socialist thought through a close reading of selected primary texts.
