Mapping landscape corridors

During the lecture Dr Mirko Guaralda presented the work of renowned town planner and urban designer Kevin Lynch and his book 'The Image of the City, 1960. We have developed our mobility services further in projects such as the Victoria Cycle Plan, Cardiff Cycle Plan, Boise Transportation Plan, continued advice to Hamar in Norway on repositioning their train station and tracks, by advising Glostrup in Copenhagen on their transit hub and related development, and along the Monon Trail outside Indianapolis, as well as a new BRT line in Sydney. Such maps artificially exaggerate the proportions of the geography and are a useful tool for dealing with data themes such as population density.

We contextualise our findings in relation to theory and the wider literature of evidence-based policy, indicator use and urban governance. Spatial representations of urban areas produced at different dates were converted into vector format, resulting in spatial cartography representing the urban area in two different data formats, raster mode and vector mode figure 2. Campbell and Marshall found a lack of consensus and reluctance to discuss values normatively among practicing planners.
