Today, this town has the largest number of frescoes in Shekhawati. Getting there: Fort Seengh Sagar is about 135km from Udaipur; contact the hotel 099291 72000 for road transfers. Columns with ornamental bases and cusped arches, and a large arch constructed with the help of bamboo stirrups, all add to the beauty.

Inside the Painted Havelis of Shekhawati in Rajasthan

Located in a lush belt along the Kalisil River Valley, the fort is near Ranthambhore, and its surroundings are teeming with jackals, hyenas and wild boars.

Although it is located 12 km away from the railway station, the hotel could be accessed easily through Jaipur Ajmer Highway without entering the city and its traffic. Its 20 rooms showcase old artefacts and merchant life in the 19th century. Miniature paintings and Rajasthani upholstery give the interiors a traditional feel, while the delightful rooftop restaurant serves Rajasthani and European fare.

Sirsi Haveli

In 1860, German chemical pigments such as ultramarine, chrome red and emerald green reached India and remained popular till World War I, until supplies were hit. Maroon was popular from 1820 to 1865, red and blue held sway between 1860 and 1910, and multi-coloured paintings using cheap European paints dominated the years from 1900 to 1950. After independence the haveli was allotted to locals.
