A product design change must be presented in a document, reviewed and signed off by senior engineers in the team.

Best Practice Recruitment and Selection

Process evaluation interviews continued until all potential staff or community members who wished to, took part, rather than after concept saturation, to give all potential participants the opportunity to contribute. Line managers have the responsibility to get the interview and selection process right and to positively represent the organisation as an employer of choice.

EPUB Face Off

A Simplified, Unifying Corporate Technology Platform. Letting every team member develop their own communication playbook is not only inefficient, it leaves a lot to interpretation. The company was running more than 30 major IT platforms, with 60 million lines of code, none of which were integrated with each other.
